1. What cookies are

Cookies are small files or similar technologies stored by a browser. They can help a website remember settings, maintain secure sessions, measure usage or integrate external services.

2. Necessary cookies

Necessary cookies are used to make the website work properly, for example language choice, security, session handling or basic technical functions. These are normally required for the website to function.

3. Analytics and improvement

If analytics are used, they help understand how visitors use the website, which pages are visited and where improvements are needed. Analytics should be configured in a privacy-friendly way where possible.

4. External services

The website may link to or embed services such as Google Maps or Google Calendar. These services may use their own cookies or tracking technologies when opened or embedded. Their own policies apply.

5. Consent

Where consent is legally required for non-essential cookies, visitors should be offered a clear choice before those cookies are used. The final cookie setup should match the actual website implementation.

6. Managing cookies

Visitors can manage or delete cookies through their browser settings. Blocking some cookies may affect website functionality or embedded services.

7. Changes

This cookie policy may be updated when the website, tools or legal requirements change. The final published version should reflect the actual cookies used on the live website.
